FRENCH COLLECTION - 100
EXCEPTIONAL CREATIONS BY TODAY'S LEADING ARTISTS AND DESIGNERS

From October 20-25 2025, the French Center of Design will showcase 100 contemporary French art and design pieces at the Artcurial auction house.

By bringing together artworks with collectible design pieces and 20th-century re-editions, the event stands as a true homage to French taste during Paris Art Week.

Heirs to a long decorative arts tradition, fifteen designers and artists, will embody the quintessence of contemporary French style and demonstrate the enduring ability of French creativity to reinvent itself.

More than an exhibition, this 3rd edition is intended to bring together an international community of stakeholders around exceptional pieces in celebration of contemporary French creativity and its prominent role on the global stage.

FRENCH COLLECTION • 20 - 25 OCTOBER 2025
FROM 11 AM TO 6 PM

AT ARTCURIAL - HÔTEL DASSAULT - 2ND FLOOR
7 ROND-POINT DES CHAMPS ÉLYSÉES, 75008 PARIS

"I created French Collection with a desire to share with the world the very essence of French style and the richness of contemporary creation. It is a celebration of French aesthetics, decorative arts, and timeless luxury. A collection, in my view, is not just a series of objects, it's a carefully composed narrative in which each piece resonates with the others to unfold a common story. This is the idea that drives French Collection."

THE FRENCH CENTER OF DESIGN

In 2012, Kira Hosany founded the French Center of Design with an ambitious mission: to provide international professionals with privileged access to the excellence of French decorative arts and to support French creativity worldwide.

Over the past decade, the French Center of Design has become a key cultural bridge, connecting the world's leading interior architects, collectors, and cultural institutions with the best French creators.

Through its exhibitions, events, and exclusive encounters, the French Center of Design fosters dialogue and exchange, promoting the excellence of French decorative arts and reaffirming France's central role on the international stage.

The French Center of Design also creates unique experiences for discerning international stakeholders, immersing them in the French art de vivre: private visits of architectural treasures, meetings with world-renowned designers, exclusive access to ateliers and artists' studios, and fine dining experiences.

In just 14 years, the French Center of Design has become a key player in the promotion, strategic development, and international outreach of French decorative arts. They have supported 250 French businesses in their export development, introduced 2,000 international professionals to the French market, organized more than 150 events, and generated over €35 million in revenue for French manufacturers.

In 2020, Kira Hosany launched French Collection: a Parisian exhibition of exceptional creations, designed to welcome seasoned collectors and interior architects during one of the capital's most important artistic gatherings.

"My goal is to show the world the vitality and originality of today's French decorative arts. Contemporary French creation is a unique blend of rich heritage, exceptional aesthetic culture, and powerful creative energy. It is embodied by visionary talents who border on genius, and whose works I am determined to share with the entire world."

PARIS ART WEEK AT ARTCURIAL

Within the historic setting of the Hôtel Marcel Dassault, French Collection 2025 unfolds as a true ode to French creativity and cultural excellence.

During Paris Art Week, the Hôtel Dassault will not only host the French Collection exhibition on its top floor, but also Artcurial's modern and contemporary art sales on the ground and first floors, offering visitors a rich experience.

The choice of Artcurial as the setting for this third edition is no coincidence. As France's leading auction house, and housed in the historic Hôtel Dassault, Artcurial stands as a symbol of French luxury and heritage, deeply valued by collectors worldwide.

Founded in 2002, and boasting more than 25 fields of expertise, spanning fine arts, decorative arts, classic cars, jewelry, watches, and fine wines, Artcurial has rapidly established itself as a reference point, with international recognition and an active presence in Europe, the Middle East, and Asia.

For the 2025 edition, French Collection reunites with its trusted creative team, who once again rise to the challenge of harmonizing works of diverse aesthetics. The scenography will be orchestrated by Karim Ceballos (KJS Architecture), while the visual identity is crafted by Olivia Jourde (The Letter O).

This year's exhibition is supported by two prestigious partners: Plendi by Vinci Construction, a leading general contractor specializing in luxury projects, and Wel Fine Art, a company specialized in art transportation and turnkey project management.
